Who would have thought that the Brooklyn bridge would take a hand in President making? Yet Hawitt's long speech has been the means of nominating him for the Presidency. In that case the bridge would have been a divinity shaping political ends, rough hew it as you will.

A cyclone struck Greenville, Hunt county, Texas, Saturday night, demolishing the Methodist church, completely destroying three fine residences and unroofing and otherwise injuring 40 or 50 others. Many persons are reported injured, but the only death was that of a small colored child. The damage is estimated at from $50,000 to $60,000.

It is stated that 120 members of the British House of Commons, chiefly moderate, Liberals and Radicals, have sent a memorial to Mr. Gladstone asking the introduction of a bill granting female suffrage in any franchise measure the government may propose. Besides those signing the memorial, many members have pledged themselves to vote for a woman suffrage bill if the bill be proposed by some private member and not introduced as a government measure. These latter desire such a bill to be put upon its merits, and not be used or opposed as a political bill. If pushed as a non-partisan measure the vote on such a bill, or the discussion of it, will afford an index to British sentiment on this question that will be of exceeding interest in this country.

FROM THE FAR WEST.

An Interesting Description from O. A. Bennett of the Country Through Which he Passed.—S. Jones and Incidents.

the water to the several points, and bringing it through under the track. These deserts all slope from the Sierra Nevada mountains on the east to the Cascades on the west, so we travel this long gloomy Sunday. We take supper in India. After supper we break the monotony of the day by singing and talking, and have a good time generally. Being Sunday evening we go to see the girls, not having far to go, only to the next section of seats. Not being allowed to keep very late hours, about nine o'clock we all dispersed to our respective berths and were soon snug to sleep by the whistling wind and patter of sand on the roof.

May 7th.—Waking up this morning at 4:30 we were in Los Angeles, the weather and surrounding country having altogether a different appearance. It didn't seem possible that ten or twelve hours' ride could bring such vast difference. There was quite a heavy shower of rain falling when we stopped, but not minding that we were soon ready for a look at the beautiful orange grove city of California. Taking a carriage we were driven through the main business part of town, from there on the road to Washington Gardens, through the residence part of the city. Such beautiful yards, grown with spruce and cypress trees; spruce-cedar fences, palm trees, and flowers of all kinds, indescribable, brought out by the beautiful morning's rain. The orange and lemon groves loaded down with red and yellow fruit. You can buy all the oranges you want at twenty-five cents a bushel—Everybody had oranges. It was not many hours until some were inquiring after the pain killer, the brandy—or I mean the painkiller. Leaving Los Angeles about 9 A. M., we travel through some fine country, beautiful valleys and mountain scenery quite pleasing to the eye after our Sunday's travel. About 1 o'clock we go through a tunnel 1-1/4 miles long, afterward pass the Continental Oil Works, and then through another tunnel. In this valley we see several honey farms and poultry ranches. About 4 P. M. we come to the Mojave Desert. Here we see the largest cactus tree, 12 to 15 feet in diameter. This is not so bad as the Yuma Desert. Looking off to the southwest we can see the high snow-capped Sierras. Reaching Mojave, we took supper. This is a small place from where frightening was formerly done quite extensively, it being the freighting point for Silver City and Silver Springs. There are some few teams yet, consisting of 10 to 20 mules to the team, hauling two wagons. They have to haul water for their teams, each wagon having two barrels strapped to the bed. There being a branch road from here to Silver City has almost stopped this enterprise. Here another engine is attached, our train consisting of thirty freight and five emigrant cars. We now ascend the grade to the Tehachap Mountains, where there was great disaster not long ago, caused by the train breaking and running back off the grade. Our train broke after we had started up the grade, the fore part leaving us some little distance before they discovered they were loose. There was not much sleeping done in the car until after we got over the summit. After reaching the summit we descend the steepest grade on the road. We pass through seventeen tunnels in three hours' ride; also going through the loop, the train making a complete loop of eleven miles circle. They have to do this in the first place the road bed is high up on the side of the mountain, and all at once they have to descend into a deep valley, which can only be done by making this circle and tunneling through the mountain under the same spot you go over. It was a long time before their engineer could devise any way of getting down this mountain. One day seeing his little boy playing with a rope, which he was calling a railroad, the rope so laying as to form this loop, the thought struck him as to this plan, and from that he engineered his way down the mountain.

May 8th.—This morning we find ourselves in the great Tulare Plains. Tulare is the first principal town. This country will long be remembered as famous, having been the scene of one of the most unjustifiable attempts of monopoly to crush in independence, that perhaps, was ever made in this country. One of the largest land grants ever made to a corporation in this country, was made by the government to the Southern Pacific R. R. Co. Millions of acres given the company as bonus for building a road from San Francisco, through southern California across Arizona, New Mexico and Texas to Galveston or New Orleans. Prior to the grant of the government much of the land now abutting the railroad, and given by the government to the railroad company, was occupied, and in many cases improved and cultivated by the occupants. Such occupation giving to each settler, under the "homestead act" of 1866, a clear title to 160 acres. The charter to the company gave them the right of way; they exercised this right, built the road and trouble commenced. The company's agents made a demand on the settler to purchase lands at prices fixed by the company, ranging from $5 to $30 per acre. The settlers denied the right of the company to the lands occupied by them (the settlers) and refused to recognize the company's agents. They appealed to the government to sustain them in their rights, but were informed that they must deal with the railroad whose lands they occupied. The company would not yield, the settlers refused to meet their demands, and decided in mass meeting to hold their lands, and if need be, fight for them. After several attempts by the company to bring the settlers to terms, the company sent a U. S. Marshal and posse with warrants for the arrest of some of the settlers and others. A fight ensued in which two of the marshal's posse and six citizens were killed. Most of the settlers who participated in the struggle were arrested, tried and convicted and sent to San Quentin. This punishment was looked upon by the settlers as unjust and inequitable, remained at San Quentin two years and were then pardoned by President Hayes, who had recently visited them and heard from their own lips their grievances.

About six miles from Tulare, looking to the east, we see the Tulare Lake, which is 70 miles long. In this lake is an abundant supply of fish. The land through this part of the country is most excellent for grazing. We next stop at Fresno City, a town of 3,000 inhabitants, of which 300 are Chinese. Around Fresno City we see very fine irrigated farms, crops looking well. Our next town is Madera. There we see some of the largest ware-houses on the road. The country we are traveling through this afternoon, is one of the finest wheat countries in the land. To see the large and numerous ware-houses, in every little town on the road, would give you an idea of the crop. We have been traveling through one continuous field of grain for three hours, no fences; you can't tell where the farms are divided. The largest portion of this land is owned by a few men. We take supper in Lathrop, laying here till 8 P. M.

May 9.—Arrive in Oakland in the morning at 7 o'clock. Taking the ferry at 9 o'clock, we are soon across the Bay to San Francisco. Taking a rest and cleaning up, after dinner we go to Woodward's Gardens, where you can spend a week if you had time. Here we see sights too numerous to mention: Planes and animals from all parts of the world, birds of the air and fishes of the sea of every description, variety and size.

May 10.—We take in Golden Gate Park, which is very fine, the scenery being natural.

May 11.—We go and see the Diamond Palace, the Palace Hotel, with 1,000 rooms, the Japanese Art Store, China Town, and lastly the Mint. We have a guide to go through this establishment with us, explaining everything as we go through. We see the whole process of coining money.

May 12.—Weather cloudy and rainy this morning. At 10 o'clock we gather up our baggage, go down to the wharf, and board the steamer, State of California, bound for Honolulu. There are 600 passengers, besides the baggage and freight. Moving out we are soon out of the Bay through the Golden Gate into the broad Pacific. Everything goes off smoothly until about supper time, when some begin to look a little pale, others sneeze out of the cabin to their state-rooms. After supper fun commences: Some swallowed a fly and he didn't set well; they soon make a break for the room, some against the railing of the deck, feeding the little fishes.

May 13.—I felt very well this morning until after breakfast then I gave up rather freely too.

7 A. M.—Sea-sick.
10 o'clock.—"Sea-sick!"
12 o'clock.—"Oh, how sick!"
2 P. M.—I want to go home.
4 P. M.—I want to die!!

During the day the sea became very rough. The Captain said it was the roughest sea he had seen for nine months.

May 14.—Not sleeping much through the night, but feeling considerably better. I was out on the upper deck in company with a few others at 4 P. M. to watch while going over the Columbia River Bar. This is considered a very dangerous place in rough weather. We were piloted through safe and sound into the river. Then was the pleasant part of our trip on the steamer. Having breakfast at 8 o'clock, most everyone was able to be down to breakfast. We soon lightened the heavy loaded table. After breakfast everybody was out on deck having a jolly good time. We reached Portland at 3 P. M. Our eyes were soon greeted by the smiling faces of William Brodbeck and Edgar Klippel, who met us at the wharf. We spent the evening with Mr. Adam Klippel and family, Wm. Brodbeck and John Schlotzhauer being there. It was a happy meeting, and we were glad to answer the thousand and one questions that were asked about Holt county folks. Next morning, George Nies, and Mr. J. M. Chambers and wife took their departure for Dallas, I remaining in Portland a few days, from there to Salem, where I will remain a few weeks.

If Nearly Dead
after taking some highly puffed up stuff with long testimonials, turn to Hop Bitters, and have no fear of any kidney or urinary troubles. Bright's Disease, Diabetes or Liver Complaint. These diseases cannot resist the curative power of Hop Bitters, besides it is the best family medicine of earth.

Bright's Disease, Diabetes.
Beware of the stuff that pretends to cure these diseases of other serious Kidney, Urinary or Liver diseases, as they only relieve for a time, and make you ten times worse afterwards, but rely solely on Hop Bitters, the only remedy that will surely and permanently cure you. It destroys, and removes the cause of disease so effectually that it never returns.

Eighty-Five Dollars Lost.
"You do not tell me that your husband is up and entirely cured by so simple a medicine as Parker's Ginger Tonic?" "Indeed, I do," said Mrs. Benjamin to her neighbor, "and after we had lost eighty-five dollars in doctor's bills and prescriptions. Now my husband feels as well as ever."

Mr. C. H. Humby, 218 N. Sixteenth street, St. Louis, Mo., says: "I used Brown's Iron Bitters for rheumatism and general debility with excellent effect."

A Traveler's Story.
After spending months at watering places and consulting the best physicians without benefit, I returned home disheartened and expected to die. A friend urged a trial of Parker's Ginger Tonic. Three bottles and careful diet have brought me excellent health and spirits and I hope my experience may benefit similar sufferers.—Cincinnati lady. See other column.

Instead of feeling tired and worn out instead of aches and pains you don't you rather feel fresh and strong?
